Homologation application

Before submitting an application for a homologation document you need to inquire whether the authorities in the country of destination accept the homologation document issued by the RDW or you need to acquire a COC (Certificate of Conformity). Only the manufacturer of the vehicle can issue the COC.

Unfortunately the RDW cannot guarantee that you are able to register your vehicle in the country of destination with a homologation document.

In case that your vehicle has been imported to the Netherlands from another EU country the RDW cannot issue a complete homologation document with technical data. This can be recognised from the code EEGK-9999 on your vehicle registration certificate next to "bijzonderheden". In this case the RDW can only issue a document which states this code free of charge, only in Dutch, Italian or Spanish.

How to apply for a homologation document?

- You can only use the PDF application form.

- You can submit your application by mail or telefax. You need to take into consideration that your application will be dealt with only when we have received the payment and the application form is filled in completely and signed. The issuing of the document takes a maximum of 15 working days.
